Health promotion in remote Indigenous communities

Red Dust delivers innovative health promotion programs and community development projects in partnership with remote communities.

We encourage Indigenous youth to learn more about health and make healthy lifestyle choices through the mentoring and influence of positive role models in sport, art, music and dance.

MISSION & VALUES

Generations of Indigenous Australians in remote communities have lived a life impacted by poor health. This affects the whole community, especially young people. Red Dust believes that good health is the key to a bright future and that health outcomes can only be made possible through a two-way exchange with communities.

We develop sincere relationships with respect to the diversity of culture, people and places. A hands-on approach utilizing the three R's.

JOHN VAN GRONINGEN

FOUNDER

In 2006 John Van Groningen along with assistance from a range of friends and supporters, set up the framework to build our organisation Red Dust Role Models. John lived in the remote Indigenous community of Lajamanu, and understood the challenges and hurdles faced by people living in these areas of Australia. He created a unique program that saw elite athletes visiting remote communities and conducting sport and healthy lifestyle programs, and by 2006 it had evolved to become the successful entity that is Red Dust Role Models.

Sadly, on December 23, 2012 John passed away due to complications with his battle with cancer. John's passion for Red Dust's work in remote Indigenous communities was unwavering and we will continue to work hard to improve the health and well being of youth in remote communities in John's honour.

How You Can Help

Red Dust travels to some of Australia's most remote areas where we work in partnership with communities to achieve something we all take for granted – good health. We urgently need your support to break the cycle of poor health so the generation of Indigenous youth in remote communities have a healthier future. Without your help, there is only a remote chance we can break the cycle.

Red Dust urgently needs your support to break the cycle of poor health so that this generation of Indigenous youth in remote communities has a healthier future. Without your help, there is only a remote chance we can break the cycle.

DONATE

FUNDRAISE

There are so many ways you can help Red Dust without being a role model or sponsor. Red Dust relies on individuals wishing to see a healthier lifestyle for our Indigenous youth - company morning teas, school BBQ's or sports days are just some of the ways you can help raise the much needed support.

DONATE

CORPORATE PARTNERSHIPS

A corporate partnership with Red Dust will enable your company to give back to the community in a positive and invaluable respect. Corporate partnerships allow us to continue to deliver programs and projects and give us the ability to expand our aim of creating healthy remote communities.
